weakness. He was not free from vanity. By an error in judgment which has led many great men to misunderstand the nature of their talent, he thought that his special gift was as a literary scholar and a writer. Upon that he particularly prided himself. There will hardly be any difference of opinion among his countrymen concerning the comparative merits of his works as a writer, and of his military achievements. A soldier of high merit he certainly was. Not only have his admiring countrymen, who have reaped the benefits of his success in the field, conceded to him this position, but their verdict has been confirmed by the court of last resort, the public opinion of the world.

The democrats are in not a little

The democrats are in not a little doubt and perplexity as to their political future. There is a strong temptation to renew the old connection with what remains of the disloyal democracy of the South, not with any idea of restoring slavery, but of securing power for the pro-slavery party. And yet the more sagacious hesitate, because they see that they risk the utter ruin of their party in the North by any such policy. They cannot fall to understand that the people of the North, without distinction of party, will resist any attempt to restore to influence and power the men who brought the terrible calamity of civil war upon the country. They are not vindictive towards the people of the footh between the telegrace of the beaver and distinction to the sisterhood, and the resmony, which as peculiar and imposing, took place before a large congration in St. Luke's Church, Hudson, street. THE END OF THE WOULD.—There is a class of minds that is more anxious to determine the period for "the end of all things" than is either good for themselves or others that they may influence. Some one has put forth a book same view, and in fast we see evidences some one has put forth a book recently, with swelling title page pointing out Louis Napoleon as the great ruler that is to be over all Christendom, but who is to move matters so rapidly that the whole job is to be through by 1874, in time for a general "amash up" then of this mundane sphere, the chapter of Daniel, the battle of Armaged, don, &c., being pressed into service, and branch from the face of the modern prophet. But as there is little faith in this kind of prediction, pretendedly based on revelation, on account of repeated failures, a Parisian saven has undertaken a scientific demonstration of the subject, which gives the world somewhat longer grace. At the last meeting of the Academy of Sciences, M. Delaunay proved that the earth's motion is gradually slackening, and that the days are thereby insensibly lengthening to the extent of a second in 100,000 years! At this rate in eight thousand six hundred and forty millions of years the earth will stone of the intelligencer.

In a MODERN MIRACLE:

A MODERN MIRACLE:

From old and young, from rich and poor, from high-born and lowly, comes the Universal Yoles of marking the sax fave years. The weak and timid politicians who are alarmed at the extravagant boast-ing of the radicals have done more to unnerve our people than the radicals have done more to unnerve our people than the radicals have done more to unnerve our people than the radicals have done more to unnerve our people than the radicals have done more to unnerve our people than the radicals have done more to unnerve our people than the radicals have done more to unnerve our people than the radicals have done more to unnerve our people than the radicals have done more to unnerve our people than the radicals have done more to unnerve our people than the radicals have done more to unnerve our people than the radicals have from high-based on which it is the very stanking of the pople and the subject, which give the very serve. The first appropriate in the fact of t ter of Daniel, the battle of Armageddon, &c., being pressed into service, as usual in such cases, for the purposes of the modern prophet. But as there is little faith in this kind of prediction, presendedly based on revelation, on account of repeated failures, a Parisian savan has undertaken a scientific demonstration of the subject, which gives the world somewhat longer grace. At the last meeting of the Academy of Sciences, M. Delaunay proved that the earth's motion is gradually stackening, and that the days are thereby insensibly lengthening to the extent of a second in 100,000 years! At this rate in eight thousand six hundred and forty millions of years the earth will stop albly lengthening to the extent of a second in 19,000 years! At this rate in eight thousand six hundred and forty millions of years the earth will atop altogether, if it does not otherwise before that period. We find thus that the world is bound to come to ure and some time or other. Science and relation both point in the same direction, M. Dulannay's prophecy, because the honor to drop from its mb.guided by Journal of the treaties of incline to think, will not affect the Paris Bourse yet awhile, not pear a mind and hand, in matters of state, may bring as much in the state of the treaties of list.

R. W. Thompson, of Indiana, a veteral while and republican politician of the conservative stamp, expressed a very common feeling in a late-speech upon the pending controversies between Congress and the President, when he said:

"We do not intend to call in any of the president, when he said:

"We do not intend to call in any of the demonstate parity to assist in the solution of any of the present difficulties, such as they are—for I believe that the Union party is high emough, big enough and long enough to settle these things which ourselves without calling upon the copperheadism, and we say to our friends at Washington, especially to those who would form a new party, if you are detarmined that we have your for a party whose attachment to the constitution creates an invelorate an invelor

We are a party whose attachment to the constitution creates an inveterate antagonism to copperheadism, and we say to our friends at Washington, especially to those who would form a new party, if you are determined that we should choose between radicalism and copperheadism, I fear there is danger or making radicals of us all. I believe I could live under redicalism, but I think not under copperheadism. If our men at Washington will look to the people, there will be no difficulty upon these questions at all. There will be no difficulty upon these questions at all. There will be no congress party and no President party.
